

SHE IS PROSTRATED

Mrs. Murray Is Quite Ill at Her Home.

MOTIVES WERE GOOD

Was Friendly to Advance Husband's Interests.

Pitiable things happen even in Wichita—things that touch the human heart. Lying in her bed yesterday, with nervous prostration, Mrs. Lang Murray, whose husband quit his home and went to the Carey hotel to board, pleaded not to have a single charge made against him in the Eagle. "I am glad to oblige the Eagle," she said, "but please say nothing concerning Mr. Murray."

The little lady was quite sick and in bed. Far away from home, in a comparatively strange land, her home was deserted by all except a faithful colored man and a colored woman. She cried as if her heart were breaking.

What was her ailment? The gossipers said she had attempted suicide. She had not. It was the natural nervous prostration of a sensitive little woman with a small boy—a mere baby—sixteen hundred miles away from her family and her natural friends.

A noble little heart is in the breast of Mrs. Murray. She said she had, perhaps, been indiscreet in being too friendly with the people she met, but she had heard it influence in securing ETAGINEADODGO was the way of the west and thought her influence in securing friendships would advance her young husband in the company. Her whole thought and her highest ambition was his advancement, popularity and prestige among the people of Wichita, socially and in business.

"The poor boy," she called him in a manner that was too affectionate to be indignant.

"I declare," she said, as tears rolled down her cheeks, "I do not know what to do except to trust in the faith of my motives and in the good people of Wichita for my vindication. Reporters have besieged my house desiring to find out all my family affairs. I did not know quite what to do but to remain silent. Do you think, as a reporter, that I ought to be subjected to such torture? Remember that I am not complaining, for I do not know whether it is the custom of the west or otherwise that such matters should be made public. I am sure that I would like to oblige everybody, but I confess I do not always know the best way to do it."

Mrs. Murray has been called "smart." The word is not expressive. She is a bright, refined and highly cultured lady of remarkable cleverness in making herself agreeable. That is the reason she is called "smart." She talks too innocently, too candid and with too much confidence in the description of what is known in the west as a "smart" woman.

In her distress Mrs. Murray is not without friends. A woman is never wholly deserted so long as her own sex do not lose interest in her. Many of the best known women in Wichita called yesterday to offer their encouragement and others wrote expressing their sympathy. She talked of them to an Eagle reporter in the most affectionate manner and tears again came to her eyes as she referred to the nobility of Mrs. Spier, Mrs. Hendon and other well known ladies who expressed unflinching confidence in the propriety of her actions. "Come, what may of my sorrows," she said, "I shall never forget the women who have given me their sympathy in this darkest hour of my life."

"I have some pride," she said, "I shall not entirely sacrifice it. I made a mistake in the first marriage, but I think too much of Mr. Murray and his dear father and mother, sister and other friends to acknowledge that I made a mistake in my second marriage. I still love Mr. Murray. It is awful to think that I shall abandon all the hopes that I formed of his bright future when I came west with him to about myself willingly to conditions that I was not used to."

Mrs. Murray is as innocent as a child about the ways of the law. She has no idea of the procedure in a divorce case in Kansas. Mrs. Murray is 37 years old. The story of the gossip about her being an actress are absolutely without foundation. She came from one of the best families in the state of New York and had all the opportunities a woman of talent and ambition could desire. She has the friendship of Mr. Murray's relatives, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and they have her unequalled friendship in return. She has a little boy four years old, a regular light-headed little Lord Fauntleroy. The lad, like his mother, is handsome and bright. "I am only four," he said to the Eagle reporter, "and when I am five I will be as big as my mother."

He is not very far from it now, as Mrs. Murray is a very little woman.

AGAINST DETAILED STATEMENT

County Attorney Only on Proposed Printing Change.

There has been a matter relating to the county printing before the county commissioners for several days past that

Headache

Is often a warning that the liver is torpid or inactive. More serious troubles may follow. For a prompt, efficient cure of Headache and all liver troubles, take

Hood's Pills

While they rouse the liver, restore full, regular action of the bowels, they do not gripe or pain, do not irritate or inflame the internal organs, but have a positive tonic effect. 25c. at all drug stores or by mail of C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

is creating a good deal of interest among the parties most interested, Babb, Nighswonger & Co., owners of the County printing and the contract for the county printing and they are claiming that under the law they have a right to publish a detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures for last year. It is claimed that this statement under the law must give the name of each person to whom money has been paid and the date of making payment and for what purpose it was paid, which would make quite a voluminous official document.

County Clerk Chain gave an estimate that the statement would fill every line and page of the Wichita Eagle if it were published in it, and that some of the other papers will have to enlarge their sheets in order to contain it. He has from this that the value of a good farm or two would be required to foot the printer's bill in case this statement is published, as some claim the law requires.

County Attorney James Conly was asked by the board of county commissioners to state what the law is. He has not only quoted the law requiring the publication of this statement, but he has given his ideas as to what is contemplated by the law. Following is the communication handed to the county commissioners last evening:

To the Board of County Commissioners: Section 361 of the General Statutes of Kansas, 1893, provides that "The board of county commissioners of the respective counties shall cause to be made out and published yearly in at least one newspaper in this county" a report of receipts and expenditures of the year next preceding, and the amounts allowed, and a detailed statement of the indebtedness of the county at the end of each year.

"I am of the opinion that a substantial compliance with the law will be obtained by a statement showing the total receipts and total expenditures of the year preceding, and the total amounts allowed. I do not believe that the legislature contemplated that it should be necessary in this statement to give the date of the occurrence, to whom paid and for what purpose each individual received such amount. A detailed statement of the indebtedness, however, should be made.

(Signed) "JAMES F. CONLY."

MARRIED AT RED WING, MINN.

Mr. Frank Bratich and Miss Cora Falkenstein, Both of This City.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bratich left for Colorado Springs, Manitou and Denver Sunday night to be absent about ten days. This announcement will be a surprise to Wichita people, as it was not known, except to a few intimates, that Mr. Frank Bratich and Mrs. Cora Falkenstein were married until Sunday night. However, they were united at Red Wing, Minn., some three weeks ago, and the matter had been kept a secret except to immediate friends. Frank Bratich is a son of Mr. John Bratich, the shoemaker, and has many friends in Wichita. Mrs. Falkenstein was raised in Wichita and has many friends in the city. The happy couple will remain a day or so in Hutchinson, where they were met by Mrs. May Skelley and Miss Gertrude Frohman, who will accompany them on their trip to Colorado. Mr. and Mrs. Bratich will return to this city in about ten days and will make this their home.

HUNTING FOR HER SON.

Ohio Woman Who Wants Word From the Harvest Fields.

Mrs. William McSpadden of Trumbull, Ohio, is hunting for her son, who has come to the harvest fields of Kansas. D. W. Kline has received the following letter from her:

"Dear Sir: I will drop a few lines in regard to information of my son, Nelson P. McSpadden, who left home suddenly after seeing pieces in Cleveland Press of harvest hands wanted with your name in connection. He expressed a wish to go a week before, but I did not think best."

"Sunday the 16th of June, he left without saying anything. Not having heard from him, am very anxious and any information would be thankfully received. He was of medium height, light hair, gray eyes, aged 38 years, weight 150 pounds. When he left home he had on orange and black striped sweater, bicycle cap, dark, brownish coat, black pants, black shoes."

"Am very much worried for fear of some accident to him. Any information of him would be gladly received. Yours respectfully,

"MRS. WM. MSPADDEN."

"Trumbull, Ohio."

Midnight Celestial Display

Colors.

LAST evening about midnight there occurred a celestial phenomenon which attracted the attention of all who were out at that hour. There was a veritable midnight rainbow. The moon was in full and as it perched in the zenith of the midnight sky it displayed a most magnificent spectacle. To the south the sky was a clear opaque blue, with just one star visible, and a lesser light it was, seemingly twinkling its best to assert itself. To the southwest the evening star, Venus, shone bright and sparkling, shedding her pale light over the southern zone. There was a death-like pallor over the southern hemisphere, and beneath there was no sign of clouds or other hindrances. The spectators gathered and spread over the whole northwest. In concentric circles the shimmering emanation of light, encircled in all the colors of the spectrum. It was a grand and inspiring sight. Off to the north and the northwest the circling clouds made a corrugated path way of bow down. The upper path of the clouds made a variegated canopy which seemed fitting to overshadow such a wondrous sight. Intermingling with the natural hues of night were the shimmering disks of the moon. Back to the west ranged the light clouds which folded in gentle symmetry of involutions, and as they spread they were colored with the soothing tints of orange, blue, green, corn, vermilion, pink and royal purple. It was a real midnight celestial rainbow, a phenomenon which is not only rare, but significant to students of the heavens.

COUNCIL GETS HOT

It Imposes Heavy Fine for Sale of Morphine

AND FIRES THE FIREMAN

Goes on Record for Good Music and Fast Horses.

When Mayor McLean called the council to order last night all members were present except Luling and McKee. There was a good deal of routine business after a very large amount of talking.

The first thing of interest to come before the council was the matter of free concerts. S. L. Nelson was present and said the Street Railway was willing to pay something for these concerts if they were held in Riverside park. He said his company would not pay anything for concerts at Hyde park because they did not like to haul big loads across all the railroads. There were too much risks and delays on account of trains. He said the company would pay $75 a month for eight concerts and six of them to be in Riverside and one in Hamilton and one in Hyde park. The park commissioners said they would donate as much as the Street Railway and the council voted to give $100, making the $200 a month that the Sanford band wanted. Some of the members of the council did not take kindly to the idea of voting money for concerts but it seemed that public clamor was too strong for the council and the appropriation was made.

Van Duyn opened the ball on the matter of fast driving in south Riverside by making a speech when there was no motion before the house. He said people ought to be encouraged to get good horses and a driving horse was not much good if there was a law against his pacing or trotting faster than six miles an hour. He said people ought to be allowed to do some fast driving in Riverside park because people liked to see good horses move. He wound up by making a motion that fast driving be allowed in south Riverside from 6 to 8 a. m. and from 1 to 3 p. m. The city attorney said there was an ordinance preventing fast driving in the city parks and then Mr. Van Duyn changed his motion to ask to direct the city attorney to draw an ordinance in harmony with his first motion and it was carried. This is even better than the owners of fast horses asked for and there will be no further complaint about having to drive in the hottest part of the day.

Chief Walden of the fire department, started the ball to rolling on the much-talked-of question of a noisy Fourth of July by asking that the city council make no change in the ordinance prohibiting the explosion of fireworks in the business center of the city. He said he had heard that an effort would be made to have it changed and that at this dry time they were liable to start serious fires. Councilman Kernan asked him if it was any more dangerous to shoot fireworks in the business center than in the residence portion. He said it was more dangerous on account of buildings and more combustible matter in the business center. There was an indication shown by some of the members of the council to allow the boys to shoot the crackers, but Mayor McLean stopped the talk by reminding the council that it was the duty of the chief of police to enforce the ordinance he found without any instructions in the matter.

The council got a prohibition move on itself and went after the vendors of morphine. City Attorney A. E. Helm introduced the ordinance by stating that he had passed it to the city clerk that he had been requested to prepare it by the chief of police. The ordinance provides that morphine shall not be sold in the city except on the prescription of a reputable physician. The penalty for the violation of this ordinance is a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100. It was remarked that Judge Stanley used pretty good judgment in fixing fines and it is believed that the fellow who violates this ordinance will get the maximum every time. Chief Durr says that the eaters of morphine are a desperate crowd and a thousand times worse than the whiskey drunkards and that if people knew the harm the sale of this drug was doing in this city, they would all favor a strict regulation of its sale. When the ordinance was put on its passage every member of the council voted for it.

The city attorney had such good luck with this morphine ordinance that he passed another one over to the city clerk and when it was read it proved to be one fixing the salary of police matron at $600 a year. The ordinance was put on its passage and carried unanimously.

Councilman Caswell got on the floor and after wiping the sweat from his face with a water-soaked handkerchief, he made a motion that the frames of the city building be discharged. He explained that he had the machinery all in good repair and that there was nothing for him to do until next fall. He was discharged by an unanimous vote, as if some of the members of the council thought he was responsible for the hot weather.

Professor Isely said the board of health had informed him that it had run out of smallpox cases and they wanted the city council to authorize the mayor to offer a reward of $1 for every case reported in the city. He said the board was of the opinion that some people were having smallpox.
